Troy Hill, Elyria City Schools / Resource Liaison

Troy grew up locally in Oberlin. He attended Oberlin City Schools. After graduating from Oberlin High School, he continued his education and baseball career at the University of Findlay.

Troy began his work in education as a temporary stop before getting his "riches" in the corporate world. Troy started work in the Elyria City School district in 1993. He has never left, so the corporate riches remain on the back burner.

Troy currently works at Elyria High School connecting staff, students, and families with community resources. He co-teaches an African American History course called "The Lost History" with Ann Runion. Together they are also advisors to the EHS Black Student Union. Lastly, Troy facilitates the EHS Boy's mentoring program in partnership with the Elyria Salvation Army.

Troy and his wife Jannette have three wonderful children and a fur baby. He is a die-hard sports fan. His favorite teams are the Browns, the Guardians, the Cavs, Manchester City F.C., and the University of Miami.

"As a Leaders of Today board member I get the chance to continue to provide students with growth opportunities that benefit them as well as the community."
